MODERATED BY KORVA COLEMAN OF NPR

Sandy Spring Friends School (SSFS) invites you to join us for an evening of conversation with local community members as they share their experiences of interracial marriage in the metro DC area. Korva Coleman of NPR moderates our panel of couples including Chandlee Offerman of Sandy Spring. Anti-miscegenation laws made it illegal for Chandlee and her husband Andy to marry in 1960s Maryland. Together the panel's experience of "mixed" marriage spans the 50 years since the United States Supreme Court struck down anti-miscegenation laws across the country.
